Eleven months ago, Agnes and I arrived church to prepare for the Sunday service just as we do every Sunday. However, as I was parking the car, I noticed something in the rear-view mirror. It turned out to be a cat and its two kittens. Initially, I left them alone and went to set up. Just before the service started, the amber rainstorm warning was issued, so I went out to check on the kittens. The cat and one of the kittens were gone, leaving one of the kittens all alone in the gutter. Worried that the kitten might drown in the upcoming rain, I pulled the distraught one-month-old kitten out of the gutter and placed it in a safe place until after the service. We were unable to locate its family, so Agnes and I decided to take him home and name him 'Shalom', which means the peace of God.

I've always just thought of it as being at the right place at the right time. If I hadn't seen the cats while I was parking, I wouldn't have rescued Shalom before the rain hit.

Until recently. During my quiet time one day, God showed me how he had planned for Shalom to be a part of our family, and it started long before Shalom was even born.

Being more of a dog person myself, I've never entertained the thought of having a cat. When my dog died in 2017, I knew I wouldn't want to have another pet again.

Strangely enough, around two years ago, God had softened my heart. I started entertaining thoughts of adopting a pet. More specifically, a cat. I played with those thoughts a bit, but never let them get serious. I knew it wasn't going to happen because our landlord had specified on our lease that we weren't allowed to keep any pets.

Last February, when we negotiated a contract renewal with our landlord, we asked them if they would agree to change the clause about not being allowed to keep pets. To our surprise, the landlord agreed to let us keep one pet.

One month later, Shalom was born, and another month after that, he became part of our family.

As God helped me recall the timeline of events, he made me realise something important. The story didn't start the day I found Shalom in the gutter. It had started a year before he was born when God slowly softened my heart. I felt that God was showing me how he put things into motion before Shalom was even conceived.

We all "know" that the Bible is filled with scripture about how God knew us before we were born. Jeremiah 1:5 and Psalms 139:15 are just to name a couple. We all know Matthew 6 talks about God taking care of the birds. However, witnessing the entire process of how God brought Shalom into our family amazes me. I wasn't just at the right time at the right place. It was part of God's plan to bring Shalom into our family.

It was a very real reminder that although we may feel like we are 'drowning' in troubles, God has already set things in motion to pull us out at the right time. If God cares so much about the birds, how much more does God care about us?
